High Security Seals

US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) will require all inbound containers to be fitted with high security seals as from October 15, 2008.

The bulk of containers shipped to U.S. ports are already secured with high security seals as required by Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (C-TPAT), but the new legislation now makes this level of security mandatory on all shipments to the U.S. All seals will therefore have to meet or exceed the PAS ISO 17712 standard for high security seals.

More information can be found at www.ismasecurity.com/ISO+17712 or you can visit our website at www.icl-ltd.com and go to the Industry Information page under About ICL.
